Be Well.

What is Corporate Wellness?

Corporate Wellness is a companywide commitment to promote health and wellness to its employees, whether it be through exercising and cleaner eating, or stand-up desks and offering benefits to workers who quit smoking. Most companies institute wellness programs to decrease healthcare costs, increase morale, and limit the need for sick days. A wellness program also shows your employees that you're invested in their futures as well as your own.

is the average reduction of sick days used when a corporate wellness plan is in place.

is the estimated ROI for every dollar spent on corporate wellness, as per Rand Corp.

of employers can offer lower health insurance premiums as a result of their wellness plans.

Eliminating one sick day per year for each employee could add nearly $1 per share in value to a company.
